DETAILED ACTION

Specification

The attempt to incorporate subject matter into this application by reference to UM 200002987, UM 200002986 and 200100127 is improper because the subject matter attempted to incorporate by reference is "essential material" for the invention and as such cannot be incorporated by reference to a foreign patent or application [MPEP 608.01(p) IA].

The incorporation of essential material in the specification by reference to a foreign application or patent, or to a publication is improper. Applicant is required to amend the disclosure to include the material incorporated by reference. The amendment must be accompanied by an affidavit or declaration executed by the applicant, or a practitioner representing the applicant, stating that the amendatory material consists of the same material incorporated by reference in the referencing application. See In re Hawkins, 486 F.2d 569, 179 USPQ 157 (CCPA 1973); In re Hawkins, 486 F.2d 579, 179 USPQ 163 (CCPA 1973); and In re Hawkins, 486 F.2d 577, 179 USPQ 167 (CCPA 1973).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claim 2 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Art Unit: 1723

Claim 2 reads "...which mix the flow which is fed into the plant from different points of same.". The claim is indefinite because it is not clear what is meant by the term "different points of the same".

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(a) the invention was known or used by others in this country, or patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country, before the invention thereof by the applicant for a patent.

(e) the invention was described in–

(1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effect under this subsection of a national application published under section 122(b) only if the international application designating the United States was published under Article 21(2)(a) of such treaty in the English language; or

(2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that a patent shall not be deemed filed in the United States for the purposes of this subsection based on the filing of an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a).

Claims 1,2 and 5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(a and e) as being clearly anticipated by Ilias et al (US 6,168,714 B1).

Ilias (714) discloses a filter system in which the feed fluid flow is reversed as in instant claim 1 (fig 2A and 2B, col 3 lines 1-45, col 4 line 25-col 5 line 23). The system has a control valve as in instant claim 2, and the membrane filter allows such reversal of flow as in instant claim 5 (cols 4 and 5).

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1-5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being clearly anticipated by EP 0 355 633.

EP (633) discloses a membrane filtration plant with several membrane filters in parallel as in instant claim 3 and 4, and having flow reversal as in instant claim 1, with control valve system for the flow reversal as in instant claim 2 and the filters having structures that allow such flow reversal as in instant claim 5. (See cols 5 and 6 and fig 3)

Art Unit: 1723

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

Claims 3 and 4 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Ilias (714) in view of Lapierre (US 4,702,842)

Ilias (714) discloses a membrane filter system having flow reversal as in instant claim 1 (fig 2A and 2B). Ilias does not teach multiple filters in parallel or series with the filters connected head to head without a lot of piping in between as in instant claim 3 and 4. However, it is a common practice in the membrane filtration industry to have filter elements connected in series and parallel, head to head, with little or no interconnecting piping, as is shown by Lapierre (842) (see figures). It would be obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of invention to connect multiple filters via their head ends to make up a plant for increased filtration capacity.
